Learn the lingo! Sports bettors have a language of their own. Review this Information Sheet to learn more about the basic Sports Betting terms and ways to place a bet with Proline Sports.

Odds

Odds are simply a way of determining what is likely to happen in any given event and how much you will potentially win if you're right. The odds in the BCLC Proline app are defaulted to Decimal Odds.

Decimal Odds

Decimal Odds are shown as one number, which is the amount a winning bet would collect on a $1 bet. If the odds are listed as 6, a winning bet would receive $5 profit and the original $1 bet.

Example: A Vancouver Canucks win is 2.25 and a Seattle Kraken win is 3.35. In this game, a $10 bet on a Vancouver win would return $22.25, broken up into the original $10 bet plus $12.25 in profit. A $10 bet on Seattle win would give you $33.50.

Market Types

Markets refer to a specific event or scenario you can bet on. In other words, it's what you're betting on within a specific game. Different sports have different markets due to their unique aspects.

TOTO

The Player makes multiple predictions on the outcomes of 13 games and can win multiple prizes. They choose either:

- Visitor Win
- Home Win
- Tie

* Multiple predictions are required for at least two of the 13 games.

If Player correctly predicts the outcomes of 11, 12, or 13 games, they win or share the prize pool

Moneyline

Moneyline is one of the most popular and simplest forms of sports betting in which you pick a team or player to win straight up, without a point spread involved. You are simply betting on which team will win a certain game

Oddset 3-Way

The Player chooses outcome of the game with three options of the outcome, either:

- Visitor Wins
- Home Wins
- Tie

Point Spread

A Point Spread is used in sports betting to even the odds between two unevenly matched teams. Each team is given a point total that can either be added or subtracted to a team's final score.

- If the Point Spread for a hockey team is -1.5, that means that 1.5 goals are subtracted from their final score. The team must win by 2 goals or more to be considered the winner

Total Goals/Points

Also referred to as Over/Under, the total combined points in a game or the number of games a team will win in a season. A Player will wager that the total number of points scored in a game will be higher or lower than a set value. If they are correct, they will win

* Also used in Prop bets

Props

A Prop bet is a type of wager that depends on whether an event will or will not happen in a game. The event being bet on won't directly influence the outcome of the game. For instance, betting on a player to score a certain number of points or a specific team to score the first goal in a match

Common type of Prop bets:

- Player Prop – based on how a player will perform in a game (i.e. how many goals they score)
- Game Prop – is something as simple as choosing which MLB team will score first in a game
- Team Prop – betting on the performance of just one team instead of both

Bet Types

A bet type is the format or structure of the bet itself. This is all about defining how you are placing your bets. PROLINE will offer:

Single-Event Bets

A Single-Event Bet is among the simplest types of bet where a wager is placed on the outcome of one event.

Parlay Bets

A parlay is a single bet that links together two or more individual Picks and is dependent on all the Picks being correct for a winning outcome.

Types of Parlay Bets:

- Single - Some single bets (like a Same Game Parlay bet) may include a number of outcomes to be predicted correctly in order to be a winner
- Double - A Double is one bet on 2 picks in different events. Both picks in a Double must be correct for a winning bet.
- Treble - A Treble is one bet on 3 picks in different events. All 3 picks must be correct for a winning bet.
